On January 1, 2014, Arpad Konyves joined our team as an Associate Editor, replacing G. Klaud Miller, M.D., who completed his term. Dr. Konyves was born and raised in Hungary and is a graduate of Semmelweis University Medical School in Budapest. He then continued his medical education in England and Scotland, where he completed his specialist training at the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, did his Fellowship in foot and ankle surgery at York Teaching Hospital in England, as well as Fellowship training in Soft Tissue Knee Surgery and Lower Limb Arthroplasty at SportsMed SA in Adelaide, Australia. He completed his orthopaedic training in England in the Sheffield program. He and his wife and children moved to New Zealand in 2011, where he is a Consultant Orthopaedic Surgeon in Rotorua, practicing general orthopaedics, and is the Director of Lakes Orthopaedics. Dr. Konyves has extensive experience in teaching both undergraduate students and junior doctors, and he was awarded an Honorary Lectureship at the University of Sheffield in recognition of his participation in medical education. He is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, the British Orthopaedic Association, and the New Zealand Orthopaedic Association. He started reviewing for Arthroscopy in 2009 and was elevated to the Editorial Board in 2012. Please join me in welcoming Arpad Konyves to our editorial team.

Darius M. Moezzi, M.D., Associate Editor

Darius Moezzi, M.D., joined us January 1, 2014 to fill the position of Associate Editor, replacing the retiring Woll Petersen, M.D., Ph.D. Dr. Moezzi earned his bachelor’s degree in biochemistry from the University of Arizona, graduating summa cum laude. He earned his medical degree at University of Nevada Medical School, followed by an internship in general surgery and residency in orthopaedic surgery at Tufts University New England Medical Center. He was Chief Resident in adult reconstruction and arthroplasty at New England Baptist Hospital. Crossing to the West Coast, he did his fellowship in arthroscopy and sports medicine at the University of California at San Diego. He is board certified in orthopaedic surgery and has a specialty certificate in orthopaedic sports medicine. Darius lives in Flagstaff, Arizona, with his wife and four children, and practices at Flagstaff Bone and Joint. He is a team physician for the United States Ski Team and Snowboard Association, as well as a member of AAOS and AANA, having served on the AANA Compliance Committee and Ethics and Standards Committee. He has been reviewing for Arthroscopy since 2004 and was named Reviewer of the Year in 2007. He joined the Editorial Board in 2008. I am delighted to welcome Darius Moezzi to our editorial team.
